THE KYOTO MANIFESTO FOR GLOBAL ECONOMICS

PLATFORM OF COMMUNITY, HUMANITY, AND SPIRITUALITY

The Kyoto Manifesto for Global Economics is an appeal to base global economics on the richness of the spirit and wisdom generated from dialogue between science, arts and religion. This dialogue targets deepening mutual understanding through exploring our humanity and its relationship with society, the environment, and happiness.

In the 21st society, we are facing various difficulties in international society, and the seriousness of these difficulties is worsening every day. One of the reasons for the difficulties arises from negative factors, such as worsening inequality, caused from the deepening impact of globalization. In this sense, "now" the necessity for reconstructing a new social and economic system for the future is increasing.

Doshisha University has been holding a series of international symposia to develop the Kyoto Manifesto every June since 2014. We are now moving again to present the Manifesto to the world.

The main message in the Kyoto Manifesto is the reconstruction of the society and economy based on humanity and spirituality. What makes it possible is the "harmony" generated from trust in a society.

This issue will be discussed by researchers from a range of disciplines, artists, and religious people who, together, will be focusing on the exploration of spirituality and creativity.

The purpose of the 2017 Symposium is to publicize the Kyoto Manifesto which is published in the book "THE KYOTO MANIFESTO FOR GLOBAL ECONOMICS-PLATFORM OF COMMUNITY, HUMANITY, AND SPIRITUALITY".
